THE GREAT POULTRY SHOW.

PREPARATIONS THAT INDICATE A FINE DISPLAY OF BIRDS.

Every Breed and Class of Domestie Stock and Pet Specimens to Be Seen-The Den Opened Yesterday-Birds Hatched Daily.

When the second annual meeting of the Mid-Continental Poultry and Pet Stock As-sociation shall be opened to the public tomorrow afternoon at the Priests of Pallas den at Seventh and Lydia, there will be shown representatives of every class and breed of birds listed in the American and English standard. The show is to be really Angush standard. The show is to be ready a complete poultry and pet stock exhibit. The representatives of the different classes and breeds present are among the finest of the species, so that the standard of the show is unsurpassed. It is in keeping with the high standard of excellence adopted by the management from the first, and should be a cause of gratification to every citizen.

he a cause of granication to be a cause of granication to be a cause of granication to be a cause of the fees paid, and in addition there are some pet birds coming that will not appear in the carallogue. The high standard of excellence and the exceedingly large number will make the show fully double what it was last year, and then it was something of which every citizen was proud.

what it was lisst year, and then it was something of which every citizen was proud.

There will be a formal opening of the show. Mayor Davis is to deliver the address of welcome to the exhibitors.

Yesterday morning a large shipment of geese and ducks and some pit games arrived from New York. They belong to Mr. Newman, one of the famous breeders of the East, who was here last year with a large number of birds. The two cars of coops reached this dity yesterday, and will be in position at neon to-day for the birds. Mr. William McNeal, of London, Can, will reach the city to-day with about 190 birds for exhibition, and will be in the show to a large extent. Mr. McCormack, another fancier from the same place, is coming with him.

There are thirty incubators and brooders in position at the den, and during the show more than 10,000 chicks are to be hatched for exhibition. Yesterday afternoon the first crop was produced, and the little fellows were as lively and chipper as could be desired. To-day another crop is to be hatched, and so on from day to day. One of the cursosities shown is the electric hen, as the incubator run by electricity is called. That new and novel use of electricity will be of interest to many.

Yesterday a tolegraphic order came for a coop four feet high and twelve feet square for the accommodation of one of those famous golden pheassants. The bird's caudal portion is a wonder, and often when fully matured is twelve feet long. This fellow is a splendid specimen of the show.

An exceedingly unique and anteresting exhibition of pigeons of every variety known, is to be made. They are coming in large numbers, and a sight of them will more than repay anyone who loves beautiful birds.

Does the City Possess Rights to Accretions Covered by Holmes Street? a representative of the Kansas City & Atlantic Railroad Company yesterday, who wished to enter his protest against the building of the proposed Holmes street sewer extension in a northerly direction from its present terminus. The company building of the proposed Holmes street sewer extension in a northerly direction from its present terminus. The company claims that the city does not own the north end of Holmes street, as it has bought all the property about Holmes street along the river bank, and its purchases include the accretions made by the river where Holmes street would naturally run. City Engineer Filley says he has not investigated the point and therefore is not ready to render an opinion upon the company's claim.

MAYOR DAVIS AS SANTA CLAUS.

mas Divinity, Is Sent to His Honor.

Christmas is just a month from yesterday and Mayor Davis was reminded of that fact by receiving the first of his Santa Claus letters. The postoffice department showed rare wisdom in the delivery of this particular message, as it bore no other ad-dress than "Santa Claus, North Pole." The letter was from little Calherine Seymour letter was from https://www.and.com/it.read;
"Dear Santa Claus:-I want a box of heliotrope writing paper and a big doll, with natural hair, and all ready dressed, with buttons and skirts, drawers and night gown and a cloth cape, and a hair or bonnet, and one book, and some oranges, candy and nuts to put in my stocking."

SMALL BOYS QUARREL.

One Plunges a Knife Into the Other's Lungs Going Home From School.

Clarence Draper and Davey Sprengler are two little boys who go to school together on the East side, and have played often in each other's yards, but who, like the little girls made famous by the song the little girls made famous by the song writer, quarreled and fought. Yesterday evening, while returning from school, Davey is alleged to have plunged a small knife into the back of his playmate, the point of which penetrated his left lung. The wounded boy was taken home, and Taxvey was held to answer to a charge of assault in Justice Walls' court. He gave too bond for his appearance next Friday.

of October 31, has boobed up in the circuit court. It first came to trial in Justice Ebert's court, and the jury disagreed. It was tried over again, and a verticet was rendered the plaintiff. Vesterday the Pullman company appealed from this verdict to the higher court. Last July, Mr. Markie, who is a commercial traveler for a St. Louis hardware firm, was a passenger on a Pullman sleeping care bound for St. Joseph. On retiring he laid his new summer sait, for which he had paid $11, in the berth above him. In the morning the soil was missing, and Markie, who is about six feet three, was obliged to borrow a saint from the colored porter, who measure a soil for $15.15, the combined value of the suit and the contents of the pockets.
